Provide Customized User Training

Effective user training – aligned with an organization’s business processes and objectives – is a critical aspect of preparing employees to use a new application. Yet often organizations are unprepared to deliver this important training.

At Oracle, our Guided Implementation program includes customized end-user training, easily transitioning employees to use CRM On Demand in their day-to-day business life. Our experienced education consultants are dedicated solely to the CRM On Demand application and work with your project stakeholders to develop and deliver relevant training content to your end-users.

Meet your Schedules

What is the impact to your business if the deployment is delayed or falls short of requirements?

Ensure your solution is properly implemented and proceeds on schedule. A drawn out deployment kills your momentum and discourages user adoption. With a guided deployment, you compound the benefits of CRM On Demand: faster access to system functionality, less time spent analyzing irrelevant data and tasks, and an end-user community excited about working with the application.
